EcoMaster Builds the West Coast's First Canna-Business Park

The marijuana business is changing. Recreational use was legalized in California last November, and the task of growing marijuana is moving out of the woods of Humboldt County to the wide open desert of the Coachella Valley.

Coachillin' Holdings, LLC and their construction company EcoMaster are on the forefront of this (Salton) sea change. Almost 2 years ago, well ahead of the passage of Prop 64, Kenny Dickerson & John Rodgers of EcoMaster sought out ECCO Equipment to help them build what will eventually be 3,000,000 square feet of sustainable cannabis cultivation, manufacturing, processing, laboratory testing, distribution, and touring/education facilities. The 160-acre Coachillin' Canna-Business Park is bringing together industry leading professionals with global affiliations, and stands alone as the first & largest cooperative canna-business compound of its kind. It's designed to be a center of excellence & innovation, setting a new standard of sustainability for California's budding cannabis industry.

ECCO sales rep Vince Castellanos started by providing EcoMaster a simple water tower. Within weeks, however, Vince and ECCO technicians Jason Waldron and Lee Rhodes demonstrated our excellent customer service standards to such a high level that EcoMaster rented more and more equipment.

Over the next year and a half, EcoMaster rented over 20 different machines from ECCO. Congratulations to the crew in southern California for consistently demonstrating the ability to go above and beyond and earn the trust of our customer.

We are proud to partner with EcoMaster to help them complete their project on time and on budget.

"ECCO Equipment Corporation has provided us with outstanding customer service, we couldn't ask for anything more!"
John Rodgers / RMO EcoMaster

"Superior product support, excellent customer service!"
Lance Gibson / Foreman EcoMaster

Were Those Wedding Bells or a Backup Alarm?

Isn't it every girl's dream to drive off for her honeymoon in an articulated dump truck? Well, maybe not every girl, but it was for Kelly from S & S Paving, an ECCO customer in Phoenix. From the wedding cake to the "Just Married" sign, Kelly knew that she wanted her favorite tractor, a 740B, to be a BIG part of her wedding. When Ken Miles and Jeff Hightower found out about Kelly's wish, they were happy to lend a truck for the day. It looks good enough to eat! But I wouldn't want to sleep in that bed! Best wishes to the happy couple!

New Faces

Holly Stenz We are pleased to have Holly Stenz join our ECCO Phoenix team as the new dispatcher. Holly was hired October 31st, 2017 and is a terrific addition for us. She comes to ECCO with previous experience from the contractor side which made the transition simple. Holly is married to husband Greg and has 4 children and a grandson. Her hobbies include motorcycle riding and touring the country on them.

April Barker began working at ECCO in February as Payroll Administrator. She is your "go to" source for questions about payroll and benefits. If the name sounds familiar, it's because her husband Lane has been an ECCO employee for over 20 years! She is excited to work with all the great people she has been hearing about from Lane. Let's not disappoint her!

Tyler Aaker The Las Vegas Branch would like to welcome Tyler Aaker, as their new Yardman. He was born and raised in southern California, and moved to Las Vegas when he was 14, attending Cimarron High School. Tyler has worked in a used car lot, specialized in auto detailing. During his free time he enjoys skateboarding, video games, and anything dealing with the New England Patriots.

William Siu The gang in Santa Ana was treated to a visit by Tony's new baby, William, who was born last December. He is already planning a future in the tractor business!

Corporate Headquarter Remodel Completed

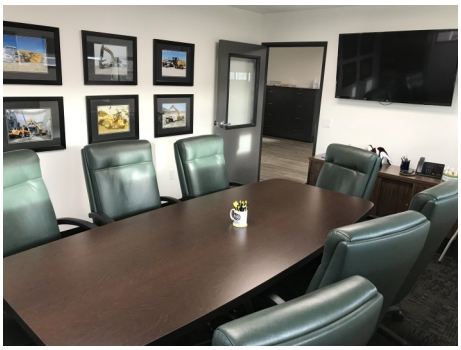
After a six month process, the remodel at Corporate Headquarters is finally complete! We gutted the old building and added 500 sf of new office. The old girl had good bones, but she needed a complete makeover. The completed project boasts a state-of-the-art conference room, spacious reception area, landscaping, ADA accessibility, energy efficiency, and all new furniture (that even matches)! Stop by for a visit!



Last week, Havasu Riviera Arizona State Park's new launch ramp was pushed into Lake Havasu. It was initially constructed by crews on land and is the first of many structures to be built within the Havasu Riviera project. During Tuesday's Lake Havasu City Council meeting, Mayor Mark Nexsen estimated that costs of the entire project would be paid off within ten years of opening – based on calculations that excluded revenues generated from the project's future restaurant, bar, hotel and other amenities, he said. He estimated that those facilities would generate another $2 million in sales tax, another $2 million in bed and restaurant tax over the next ten years and about $385,000 in property tax each year. "Those are conservative numbers," said Nexsen. "It doesn't even discuss the fact that it's going to bring a lot of different jobs."

Havasu News

February 28, 2018

ECCO had two D10's and a long reach excavator on this unique job building a new launch ramp at Lake Havasu. The D10's, along with the customer's D9, pushed the pre-poured ramp into place after the excavator, using grade control, had perfectly prepared the underwater slope.
